This is a full-time, one-year represented position, with the possibility of renewal.

The International Human Rights Law Clinic with the University of California, Berkeley designs and implements innovative human rights projects to advance the struggle for justice on behalf of individuals and marginalized communities through advocacy, research, and policy development. Students are integral to all phases of the IHRLC's work and acquire unparalleled experience generating knowledge and employing strategies to address the most urgent human rights issues of our day. The IHRLC's faculty is comprised of two full-time clinical faculty directors with administrative support provided by university staff.

The Clinic currently works in four focal areas: Promoting Human Rights Within the United States; Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights; Counter-Terrorism and Human Rights; and Accountability and Transitional Justice. The clinical fellow will assist clinical faculty in the implementation and supervision of human rights projects that fall within these program areas. With IHRLC faculty, the clinical fellow will participate in a two-unit, companion seminar for students enrolled in the clinic. He or she will teach approximately 10% of the weekly sessions.

The Clinical Teaching Fellow will work under the supervision of Clinic faculty and perform the following duties under the primary direction of the Clinic Director:

Clinical Supervision and Advocacy (70%)

- Assist in the supervision of clinic students and their caseloads each semester;
- Train, develop and facilitate educational experience and ensure expected competencies of clinical students;
- Assist in conducting human rights studies, including report drafting and dissemination;
- Assist in human rights advocacy and litigation in international, regional, and domestic fora;
- Teach one session of the clinic companion seminar and lead case rounds;
- Travel with students to conduct fact finding, attend meetings, court proceedings, and implement outreach and advocacy strategies.

Administrative Duties (25%)

- Assist in planning of the clinic companion seminar and/or case rounds;
- Review and complete all required paperwork in a timely manner;
- Assist with outreach and recruitment of clinic students;
- Work with other clinical faculty to evaluate and improve the clinical curriculum;
