out research focused on tax law! Within this broad objective, the candidate can freely define the research and thesis topic. The thesis will be supervised by Assistant Professor Dr. Moritz Scherleitner and Professor of Practice, docent, Dr. Timo Viherkenttä, who are, themselves, specialized in direct taxation.

The Ph.D. Program

The main goal of postgraduate studies in Business Law at Aalto University School of Business is to provide students with in-depth knowledge of current Business Law research and research methodology with the aim of enabling the students to contribute scientific values to their field of study. In practice, we also hone your abilities and skills to publish research in high-quality academic journals. To help achieve this goal, you will work closely with business law faculty, will partake in national and international courses, and will attend international conferences for networking and presentation purposes.

The Ph.D. Location

Aalto BIZ is one of the top business schools in Europe. At the department, you will be part of a diverse research community and work together with an international group of Ph.D. candidates and faculty (check out our [url=https://www.aalto.fi/en/department-of-accounting-business-law]website!) Furthermore, the department is closely connected to leading Finnish and international organizations, allowing you to build a broad network for research and practice. Finally, yet importantly, your teaching load will be limited to supporting one course a year (10% of your annual work time) with the possibility to teach more for extra compensation.

Your Future

A Ph.D. focused on tax law equips you with valuable professional and methodological skills much sought after in both the academic and professional job markets. Our goal is to maximize your employability, and we support you wherever necessary and possible towards successful graduation and employment.

Requirements

The suitable candidate has a relevant master's degree (MSc, MBA, MA, LL.M) or its equivalent. Good English language skills are expected. In some cases the applicant should take a GMAT or GRE General Test as a part of the application. Please find specified eligibility information and requirements on [url=https://www.aalto.fi/en/study-options/aalto-doctoral-programme-in-business-economics-and-finance]Aalto University's webpage under the headline "How to apply?".

Duration

The duration of the full-time studies is 4 years.

Salary

During the first and second years of studies, full-time doctoral students who make satisfactory progress in their studies and research are guaranteed an after-tax salary of approximately €25 000, based on a combination of 50% employment contract and 50% personal grants. After two years, funding is competitive but is assured for candidates making satisfactory progress. The department will support your applications in every respect possible. The employment contract provides candidates with occupational health care, paid annual leave, a pension contribution, a computer/phone, and working space.

Ancillary activities

Full-time doctoral candidates may have secondary occupations outside Aalto's work time if their work at Aalto is unaffected and the activities do not compete with Aalto's activities, for example. However, ancillary activities should always be informed and confirmed with Aalto's administration, supervisor and grant provider beforehand.
